

The Universal Periodic Review

Easy to read format

The United Nations created the Universal Periodic Review in 2006.

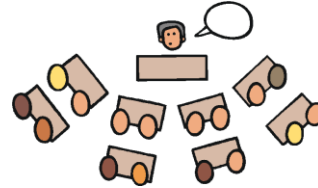

All the countries of the United Nations review Ireland every 4.5 years.

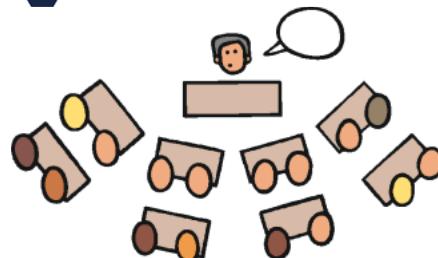

Ireland was reviewed in 2011.

The United Nations asks the Irish Government questions about human rights.

The United Nations will review Ireland in 2016.

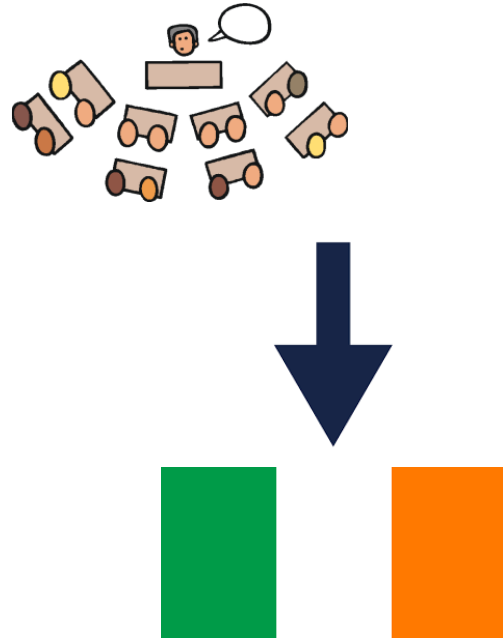

People and groups from Ireland can send reports to the United Nations about their opinions.

After the meeting the United Nations makes recommendations to Ireland.

The recommendations tell Ireland how it can better protect human rights.

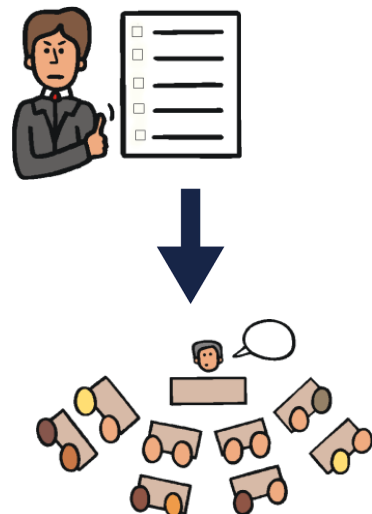

We are holding meetings across Ireland.

At the meeting people give their opinions on what Ireland could do better.

We will write down what you say today and send it to the United Nations.
